Interpretation Boundaries

- Event data describes recorded actions rather than continuous optical-tracking positions.
- Project-defined indicators such as territory and progressive actions should be interpreted according to their stated methodology.
- Comparison results should be interpreted in tactical and positional context rather than as absolute player or team quality rankings.
- Progressive actions use the project-defined heuristic of a completed pass or carry advancing at least 10 StatsBomb X-units toward the opponent goal. The pitch visual shows only the strongest actions by forward distance for readability; summary totals use all qualifying actions.
